explore the 4 different refrigerator configurations now available top, bottom, or side-by-side?

what's best about each refrigerator type french door

- Do you use more fresh food than frozen? This configuration offers the most fresh food space.
- Fresh food is at eye level for easy access, and wide items like party platters fit perfectly.
- Flexible storage in both the fresh and frozen sections helps you organize food easily and efficiently

› see products

side-by-side

- Offers a great balance of space for both frozen and fresh foods
- Gives you more door bin space, making it easier to organize and access different-sized items
- Some Whirlpool® side-by-sides offer exclusive MicroEtch spill control shelves for easy cleanup

› see products

bottom freezer

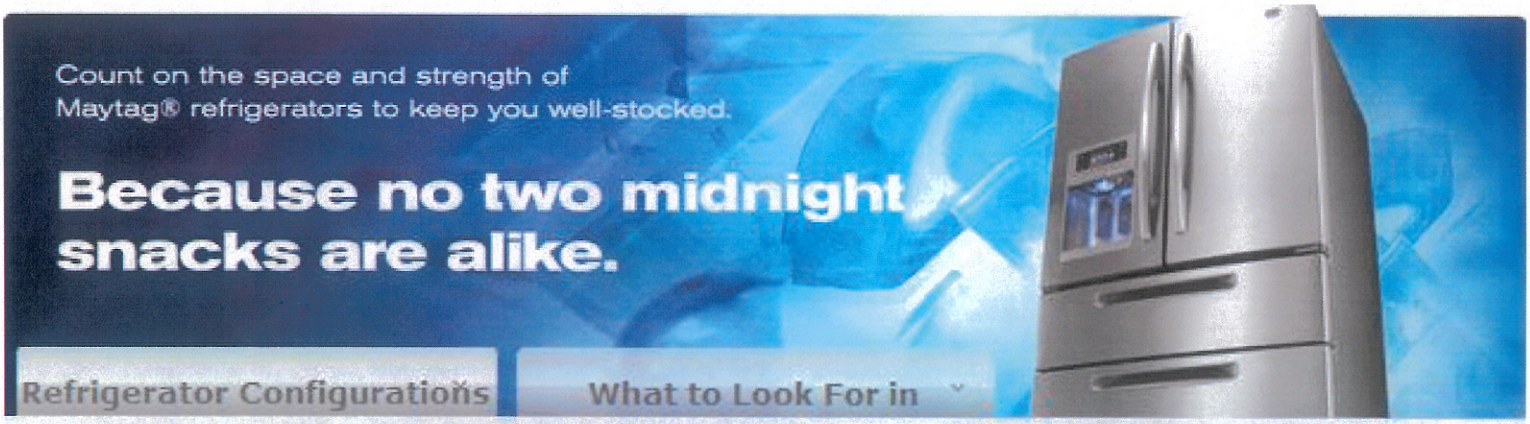
- Makes it easier to reach the fresh foods you use most often
- Your choice of pull-out drawer or swing door-style freezers
- Available in smaller sizes for smaller kitchens or for use as a second refrigerator

› see products

top freezer

- The classic configuration Whirlpool® has perfected, offering outstanding value and quality.
- Some models offer reversible doors so you can place them in more locations
- Available in smaller sizes for smaller kitchens or for use as a second refrigerator

› see products



Maytag® refrigerators hold the cold in four configurations.

French-Door Bottom-Freezer Refrigerator

GE French-door bottom-freezer refrigerators represent the latest trend in refrigerator design. The armoire-style design requires minimal space for door opening, making it ideal for small kitchens.

Bottom-Freezer Refrigerator

GE bottom-freezers are uniquely configured to put fresh foods within convenient reach. And since the fresh food door is opened far more frequently than the freezer door, a bottom freezer refrigerator reduces bending and stooping.

Built-In Side-by-Side Refrigerator

With the largest capacity GE Profile™ offers, these built-in refrigerators are designed for consumers who want a true customized look or have large food storage needs. For even more style options, consider acrylic or customized wood panels for your refrigerator.
