Preface

This is the fourteenth annual compilation of automotive trade statistics; the first was prepared by the United States International Trade Commission (formerly the United States Tariff Commission) in 1971 in response to an informal request from the Congress.

Prior to 1982, the Commission published two separate annual reports-- "Series A," covering data on motor vehicles, and "Series B," encompassing statistical information only on passenger automobiles. Beginning in 1982, the Commission consolidated the data comprising the two separate annual reports into one, as a cost savings measure and for the convenience of the users of such data.

The material presented in these tables provides information on U.S. factory sales, imports, exports, apparent consumption, retail sales, manufacturers' suggested retail list prices, registrations, and bilateral trade balances for new passenger automobiles, automobile trucks, truck chassis and cabs, motor buses, snowmobiles, miscellaneous motor vehicles, and motor-vehicle parts for the years 1964-83. Unless otherwise indicated, annual data are for the calendar years, and dollar amounts are in U.S. dollars, unadjusted for inflation.

The data presented herein was obtained from previous editions of the Commission's annual reports on automotive trade statistics, official statistics of the U.S. Department of Commerce, Ward's Automotive Yearbooks, Automotive News, the Motor Vehicle Manufacturers Association of the United States, Inc., and calculations made by the Commission's staff on the basis of materials obtained from these sources.

Overview

Highlights

During 1983, compared with 1982--

- o APPARENT CONSUMPTION of passenger automobiles, based on U.S. factory sales, increased 22.6 percent to 9.3 million units (table 1).
- o U.S. FACTORY SALES of passenger automobiles increased by 33.4 percent to 6.7 million units (table 1).
- o U.S. IMPORTS of passenger automobiles rose 7 percent in 1983 to 3.1 million units. These imports accounted for 33.6 percent of total U.S. consumption in 1983, down from 38.5 percent in 1982. The value of U.S. imports of all motor vehicles from all sources increased 15.1 percent to $28.8 billion (table 58). U.S. imports of motor-vehicle parts were valued at $12.6 billion in 1983, up from $9.1 billion in 1982 (table 61). Imports of all automotive products increased from $34.1 billion in 1982 to $41.4 billion in 1983 (table 72).
- o U.S. EXPORTS of passenger automobiles increased 46.3 percent to 550,972 units (table 1). The value of U.S. exports of all motor vehicles increased 8.6 percent to $6.2 billion (table 58). U.S. exports of motor-vehicle parts were valued at $11.0 billion in 1983, compared with $10.6 billion in 1982 (table 62). Exports of all automotive products increased from $16.4 billion in 1982 to $17.3 billion in 1983 (table 75).
- o U.S. TRADE BALANCE in passenger automobiles with all countries registered a deficit of 2.6 million units, valued at $19.2 billion, in 1983 compared with 2.5 million units, valued at $17.3 billion, in 1982 (table 80). The value of the net trade deficit for all motor vehicles increased 17.1 percent to $22.6 billion (table 58). In 1983, the United States experienced a net trade deficit of $1.6 billion in motor-vehicle parts (table 63) and an overall net trade deficit of $24.2 billion in all automotive products (table 80).

Summary

U.S. factory sales of passenger automobiles increased from 5.0 million units produced in 1982 to 6.7 million units produced in 1983, or by 34.0 percent. U.S. imports from all sources rose to 3.1 million units in 1983, from the 1982 level of 2.9 million units, a 7 percent increase.

Meanwhile, exports increased from 376,524 in 1982 to 550,972 in 1983. Thus, apparent U.S. consumption of passenger automobiles rose from 7.6 million units in 1982 to 9.3 million units in 1983, and import penetration decreased from 38.6 percent in 1982 to 33.6 percent in 1983.

U.S. imports.---The United States imported 3.1 million passenger automobiles in 1983, a 7 percent increase over the 1982 level of 2.9 million. Imports were valued at $23.4 billion 1983, compared with $20.2 billion in 1982. In 1983, almost 1.9 million of these automobiles, valued at $10.8 billion, originated in Japan. The second and third largest suppliers in 1983 were Canada and West Germany, accounting for 835,665 units, valued at $7.3 billion, and 239,807 units, valued at $3.4 billion, respectively. The five remaining principal sources of imported passenger automobiles in 1983 were Sweden, France, the United Kingdom, Italy, and Belgium, all of which accounted for 183,482 units, valued at $1.9 billion.

The United States imported motor vehicles valued at $28.8 billion and motor-vehicle parts valued at $12.6 billion in 1983, compared with imports valued at $25.0 billion and $9.1 billion, respectively, in 1982. In 1983, Japan was the leading source of all motor-vehicle imports, accounting for $12.9 billion; Canada and West Germany were the second and third largest sources, accounting for $10.4 billion and $3.6 billion, respectively. Canada led the suppliers of motor-vehicle parts with $6.6 billion, followed by Japan ($2.1 billion) and West Germany ($0.6 billion).

Canada was the principal source of U.S. imports of all automotive products in 1983, accounting for $16.9 billion; imports of all automotive products from Japan and West Germany were valued at $15.0 billion and $4.2 billion, respectively.

U.S. exports.---U.S. exports of passenger automobiles to all countries rose from 376,524 units, valued at $2.9 billion, in 1982 to 550,972 units, valued at $4.2 billion, in 1983. The largest market continued to be Canada, which accounted for 522,318 units, valued at $3.9 billion, in 1983 compared with 332,781 units, valued at $2.3 billion, in 1982. The United States exported motor vehicles valued at $6.2 billion in 1983, compared with exports valued at $5.7 billion in 1982. Canada was the principal market for U.S. exports, accounting for $4.6 billion, or 73 percent. The United States exported motor-vehicle parts valued at $11.0 billion in 1983, compared with $10.6 billion in 1982. U.S. exports of all automotive products in 1983 were valued at $17.3 billion, compared with $16.4 billion in 1982.

U.S. trade balance.--The United States experienced a net trade deficit in passenger automobiles of 2.6 million units, valued at $19.2 billion, in 1983. This deficit represents a 32,981-unit increase (valued at $1.9 billion) from the 2.5-million unit deficit (valued at $17.3 billion) in 1982. A trade deficit in value has continued uninterrupted since 1957, when the deficit was approximately $2.0 million.

The net trade deficit for all motor vehicles in 1983 was $22.6 billion, an increase of 17.1 percent over the net trade deficit of $19.3 billion in 1982. The annual net trade deficit for all motor vehicles has continued since 1965, when the deficit was $137.6 million. The United States experienced a net trade deficit of $1.6 billion for motor-vehicle parts in 1983, compared with the $1.5 billion net surplus recorded in 1982. The net trade deficit for all automotive products in 1983 was $24.2 billion, a 35.9-percent increase from the 1982 deficit of $17.8 billion.

1/ Because R. L. Polk does not report registrations of U.S.-produced Volkswagens, Hondas, or Renaults separately, but includes these automobiles under miscellaneous (which are almost exclusively imported automobiles), import registrations and the resulting ratio of imports to total sales are slightly overstated.

Source: Compiled from data presented in tables of this report.

Note.--The data in this table do not include vehicles registered with the U.S. Government.

1/ From 1975 until August 1980, virtually all imports from Japan in this category were chassis cabs and their cargo boxes; however, due to a 1980 U.S. Customs ruling, lightweight cab/chassis were reclassified as unfinished trucks (692.02).

2/ Data for 1982-83 include TSUS item 692.29.

3/ Data for 1982-83 include TSUS item 692.31.

4/ Total includes imports from Japan, Canada, and all other countries.

Source: Official statistics of the U.S. Department of Commerce.

Note.--For the period 1968-77, the data shown above under TSUSA items 692.20 and 692.21 were obtained by dividing the data officially reported by the U.S. Department of Commerce by 2 in order to account for separate importation of chassis cabs and their cargo boxes or flatbeds. After 1977 the actual number of chassis imported have been used.
