HIGHLIGHTS

In the course of reviewing the data compiled by the Commission in investigation No. 332-190, Headwear of Cotton and of Manmade Fibers, the following facts should be kept in mind. There is no definitive listing of firms which represents the universe in the cotton and manmade-fiber headwear industry. On the basis of information available, the Commission completed a listing of 340 producers, importers, and retailers to which questionnaires were mailed; however, the response rate for the Commission's questionnaire was only 25 percent. As a result, the Commission believes the data presented in the report significantly understates the size of the industry. Moreover, the response rate on questionnaires sent to retailers was extremely small, accounting for well under one percent of domestic consumption of headwear. Consequently, the retail price data provided in this report are not representative or indicative of market conditions. A summary of the economic data on cotton and manmade-fiber headwear obtained during the Commission's investigation follows.

U.S. production.--U.S. production of cotton and manmade-fiber headwear increased annually during 1981-83, from 4.4 million to 4.8 million dozen. The growth continued into 1984 when production in January-September was up 5 percent over that in the year-earlier period to 3.7 million dozen (table 1).

Capacity.--U.S. producers expanded their capacity to manufacture cotton and manmade-fiber headwear from just under 6.9 million dozen in 1981 to almost 7.9 million dozen in 1983. However, capacity utilization declined slightly during the period, decreasing from 61 percent in 1981 to 59 percent in 1983. It averaged 55 percent during January-September 1984 (table 2).

U.S. producers' shipments.--U.S. producers' domestic shipments declined from 5.0 million dozen, valued at $93 million, in 1981 to 4.8 million dozen before increasing to 4.9 million dozen, valued at slightly more than $96 million, in 1983. Producers' domestic shipments rose again in January-September 1984 when they were up 11 percent over the year-earlier level (table 3). Exports of the reporting producers were negligible (table 4).

Employment. The number of production and related workers declined from 3,365 in 1981 to 3,299 in 1982, and then increased to 3,443 in 1983 (table 7).

U.S. imports.--U.S. imports of cotton and manmade-fiber headwear have increased significantly since 1981, rising from 6.6 million dozen, valued at $63 million, in 1981 to 9.0 million dozen, valued at $74 million, in 1983. The increase continued into 1984 when imports in January-September were up 44 percent over those in the year-earlier period to a record 9.6 million dozen, valued at almost $80 million. A large part of the growth was generated by Taiwan, South Korea, and, more recently, China, which together supplied 82 percent of the import quantity in the 1984 period.

Prices.--Wholesale prices of imported baseball-type promotional caps and ivy-league caps for men were found to be substantially lower than those for competing domestic products. By contrast, imports of knitted acrylic hockey caps were higher than comparable domestic goods (table 14).

Information comparing retail prices of imported and domestic headwear is inconclusive due to the extremely small questionnaire response by retailers (table 17).

1/ Compiled from data submitted in response to questionnaires of the U.S. International Trade Commission, and represent domestic shipments; the shipments data exclude exports.

2/ Represents official statistics of the U.S. Department of Commerce and includes headwear other than that of rubber or plastics. The export data are shown only for information purposes; they were not included in the computations to determine apparent consumption because exports are already excluded from the data on producers' domestic shipments.

3/ The import penetration ratio is overstated, because U.S. producers' shipments data are based on questionnaire responses, and not all producers responded to the questionnaire. Import and export data, however, represent total imports as reported by the U.S. Department of Commerce.

4/ Represents producers' domestic shipments plus imports.
