Product information, including uses/applications and source(s) of imports:

This product is an ethoxylated dipentaerythritol polymer used to make acrylates, which, in turn, are used to make certain inks and coatings that are cured using ultraviolet light. It is also used as a crosslinking agent in polyurethane foams, and as a chemical building block. The proponent imports the subject experimental product as a clear liquid under the trade name Polyol DPP® 130, from its plant in Sweden.

Technical comments:

The Commission suggests that the article description on page 1 of this report be used in the proposed new heading, to provide a correct chemical name.

The Commission also suggests that the phrase “No change” be inserted in lieu of “Free” in the special subcolumn of the proposed new heading.

3 The Commission may express an opinion on the HTS classification of a product to facilitate consideration of the bill. However, by law, only the U.S. Customs Service is authorized to issue a binding ruling on this matter. The Commission believes that the U.S. Customs Service should be consulted prior to enactment of the bill.
